Past attendees have said the following about the Innovation Symposia Series...

100% of post-symposium survey respondents agreed or strongly agreed that:
• The symposium content was of high quality
• They gained take-aways to adopt for use at their institution
• Attending this symposium was a useful professional development experience

90% of post-symposium survey respondents agreed or strongly agreed that:
• There were opportunities to network meaningfully with other attendees
• There were opportunities to share resources with other attendees

When asked which aspects of the symposia were most beneficial, survey respondents said:
• Presentations in a relatively intimate setting allowed for questions, as well as meaningful and extended conversations.
• I liked the size. It allowed participants to meet and get to know new people because you saw them over and over in small sessions.
• The size and format made things feel more collaborative and everyone was very willing to share.
• Lots of opportunities for networking, and exchanging ideas and materials with other attendees.
• Collegiality at its best!
• Several very high content and high quality presentations.
• The breadth of expertise and experience among presenters and participants was excellent.
• Good, practical information that I can easily adapt for use at my institution.
• I am new to my position, so it was very helpful to hear what colleagues in other institutions are doing.
• The Round Table component was terrific. Allowed me the chance to break out from the traditional meetings.
• I particularly enjoyed the round table discussion.
• The symposium was very valuable. Overall a great experience.
• Felt welcomed and included.
