Health Professional Program websites

The following is a list of websites that can aid in finding professional programs in various health disciplines. Most of these websites are administered by the professional organization under which the professional programs are credentialed. These websites usually contain considerable information on the profession, so take time to investigate job responsibilities, educational degrees required for the discipline, and certifications necessary to practice in the profession.

As you investigate schools that offer programs in your area of interest, be certain to identify the necessary prerequisite courses, minimum GPA, required number of volunteer/shadowing hours, whether or not a standardized exam is required (and which one), duration of the program, when the program begins (e.g., January, May, June, September), and deadlines for application. Most programs operate with a ‘rolling admissions’ policy, therefore it is advantageous to get your completed application submitted early in their application cycle.
