CONTENT

The camp will utilize a multidisciplinary approach and provide hands-on experience with forensic science techniques that will allow the participants to solve a crime. Hands on experiences will introduce students to available technology and train them to properly and safely use scientific equipment. These activities will be a mix of both indoor and outdoor explorations. A typical day will include 2 or 3 activities focused on a particular discipline, so that campers are exposed to an exciting variety of topics and applications.

QUALIFICATIONS

Participants need no prior experience to be an excellent candidate for this camp. Participants should have a strong interest and ability in science, technology, engineering, or math. To attend, the student should be ages 12-15. The camp is designed to encourage blossoming scientists and provide an opportunity to improve their knowledge of STEM disciplines through hands-on experience. You must be able to provide your own transportation to and from the Franklin Science Center at Shippensburg University.

ABOUT THE DIRECTOR

Dr. Marcie Baer-Lehman is a full professor in the biology department at Shippensburg University. She has a PhD from University of Maryland, Baltimore, and completed a post-doctorate at the University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Alabama.
