Josh Fauth, owner of Shiloh Roofing, was born and raised in York County PA. After completing high school, Josh attended York Technical Institute for project management. He knew this education would prepare him for his future as roofing has been a part of Josh’s family for generations. In fact, he grew up watching his dad and other family members make their careers in the industry. Most recently, Josh worked for his uncle’s commercial roofing business that was originally started decades ago by his great grandfather. Over Josh’s 20 years in the business, he has worked at all levels, from starting his career working as a laborer installing roofing material, to being promoted to Estimator, and later filling the role of Project and Safety Manager.

As Josh learned many aspects of the roofing business, he consistently looked for opportunities to grow in his career. So, when he became aware of the prospect to purchase an established roofing business, he saw business ownership providing him the chance to not only advance himself but to also continue his family’s legacy in the area and, perhaps one day, provide the possibility of bringing his own young son into the business.

When Josh sought financing to purchase Shiloh Roofing, he was connected with Jennifer Horning, Business Consultant at the Shippensburg University SBDC to assist him in preparing his business plan and projections. Josh shared that working with the SBDC provided him with insights that helped him to look at his business from a different perspective and he feels the purchase of the business would not have happened, or at minimum the process would have been much more difficult, if not for the guidance of the SBDC.

Shiloh Roofing has operated in the York County roofing market for more than 65 years and has a long-standing reputation for quality work and outstanding customer service. Josh acquired Shiloh Roofing in October of 2021 and continues the tradition for excellence the business is known for by keeping individuals and families safely “under roof.” The company installs a variety of roofing products primarily for residential customers but also does some small commercial projects, as well as some siding and spouting work.

Under Josh’s leadership, Shiloh Roofing continues to impact the community by providing professional, trustworthy and affordable roofing services, as well as, by helping individuals in need and supporting youth sports and technical school programs. Josh credits his family, especially his wife and son, and friends for contributing to his successful transition to business ownership. He shares that one of his biggest challenges as an entrepreneur has been updating a decades-old business from a technology perspective. However, Josh has tackled this task and continues to grow Shiloh Roofing by adding to his employee count and increasing revenue, with the business operating at its best to date in 2022.